  - 8) Write a summary of the passage given below :

What benefits has the development of 'cutting-edge' technology already given humankind ? Modern technology has improve medicine and health care. Some people who, in an earlier era, would almost certainly be blind can opt for laser surgery to restore their vision. Modern surgical techniques have also made possible the transplant of organs, such as the heart and kidneys, to persons whose lives would, in an earlier era, have ended prematurely.

Technology has also improved education, notably through the use of computers. Students respond more enthusiastically to the colors, interesting sounds and entertaining animation of a computer program than to a static chalkboard. Computer programs can correct errors and can make suggestions for improving writing. It's almost like having a personal tutor close at hand.
