CORE COURSE: PROJECT REPORT AND VIVA VOCE

COURSE OUTCOMES

CO1: Analyses real life situations

CO2: Acquires group dynamic skills by group involvement

CO3: Develops solutions or inferences on the problem of study

CO4: Synthesis facts in the form of report

During the sixth semester the candidate shall do a research project on a relevant business/ management/banking/commerce topic. This research project is envisaged as a practical application of the research methodology course studied in the BBA Programme. Therefore, it is essential that primary data is collected as part of the research at least to some extent. Maximum four students as a group can take up a topic and the students in consultation and with the consent of the assigned guide may identify a topic and do research on that topic. To have more academic freedom and flexibility, the project shall be done without being attached to any business organization. The candidates together shall prepare and submit a project report to the Department. The project report should be submitted to the Head of the Department on the last working day of the sixth semester. The candidates together as a group shall prepare a copy of the report and submit them in the department, which shall be handed over to the external examiner at the time of viva-voce examination. Each student in the group should also keep a personal copy with them. The report shall be prepared as per American Psychological Association (APA) or Modern Language Association (MLA) format. Use of Statistical software Students shall be encouraged to use statistical software for data analysis.
